It will always be our endeavour to supply the very best Plants or Seeds, true to the description given in this catalogue, but it is a condition of sale of all Plants and Seeds sent out by us, that, though we give you our assurance that we are using all reasonable care in the selection, we accept no responsibility in regard to the crop or failure of crop. All orders are booked on the understanding that these conditions are agreed to and we also notify to the same effect on the invoice. If the conditions are not acceptable to you the goods should be returned at once.

Quotations are without engagement, but where the price is mentioned on the order we will refer back for confirmation if an increased rate has to be charged. If we fail to do this, the goods can be returned if the price is not approved.

When we are unable to supply the exact variety ordered, we use our best judgment as to substituting other varieties. Any such substitutions are always made with a due regard to season, locality and other conditions so far as known to us.

The substituted varieties are sent for your approval, and while we hope and feel sure that you will agree to what we have done with a desire to serve your best interests, you are at liberty to send back any such goods and we will promptly credit you with their value.

FIVE PER CENT. CAN BE DEDUCTED IF CASH IS SENT WITH ORDER.

Orders for plants are executed at
AYRES' NURSERIES, ROSEBANK, CAPE.

WHEN YOUR PLANTS ARRIVE.

The ground should be ready for them, having been trenched in advance to a depth of 3 feet—that is for shrubs and trees of a deep-rooting nature, smaller plants need less depth, but all plants are benefited by deep working.

The first operation is to prepare the holes. In soil prepared as we have indicated this operation will be very quickly performed. The marking out for each plant should be done in any convenient manner and a stake should be placed in each position so that you may view the arrangement and see if it is good before you proceed. Now take a flat board about 4½ feet long and saw three notches in the edge of it—one in the centre and the others two feet from the centre, one near each end. Place the board on the ground with the centre notch fitting the stake. Insert two other stakes to fit the end notches and withdraw the first stake. The hole may now be dug between these stakes and when the tree is planted the board is replaced and the stem is fitted to the centre notch, thus securing the exact position intended.

The holes must be dug quite deep enough to receive the tree in its normal position with the roots well spread in every direction as nature intended. They must not be cramped up in any way. If a liberal supply of manure was worked in at the time of trenching you will not need so much in each hole now. Otherwise, you must dig the holes deep enough to receive it and it must be well mixed with the soil.

When planting, commence by filling in a little soil so as to form a mound in the centre of the hole rather than have it saucer-shaped. The idea is to form a cone on which to stand the tree at its right depth and then fill in more soil and the roots will naturally work in to the right position, sloping downwards and outwards towards the edge of the hole. The soil must be well pressed down—do it by hand, working it well and firmly among the roots. Loose planting is disastrous. If the soil is inclined to be dry, give a good supply of water at once, but cover up with soil on the surface after the water has soaked away. Do not leave a wet surface to cake and become hard around the stem and roots of the plant. If the soil is light and sandy it will be much benefited by an addition of good garden mould or clayey loam. This may be put in the hole, but, like the manure, it must be well mixed with all the soil. A layer of coarse rubble or any suitable refuse deep down in the bottom of the hole is of much benefit as it helps the drainage and keeps the soil open for root penetration.

If the plants reach you in pots, they are easily removed by inverting the pot and giving a light rap on the edge by striking it downwards on the top of a firm stake or other convenient object. If in ¼-tins, the plants are also very easily removed without disturbing the roots. Look for the wire tie at the top edge, remove this and the tin can be stripped off by opening it at the folds which are easily seen. It is not quite so easy to remove plants from larger tins. The best way is to slit the tin down on two sides with a sardine opener or other sharp tool and then you can pull it apart and remove the plant with all the soil adhering to the roots. If you wish to save the tin even at the risk of hurting the plant, then loosen the soil on all four sides with a spade before you attempt to remove the plant. Jam tins and such-like unsuitable receptacles are not used by careful Nurserymen as they are very difficult to deal with excepting at the risk of seriously injuring the plant.

In planting from pots or tins where the soil has not been disturbed, you proceed in much the same way as described above, but you want a flat or slightly hollow surface at the bottom of the hole just at the right depth for the plant to rest on and all soil filled in around or below the plant must be well firmed down otherwise the plant will sink to a lower depth when watered.

Should the plants arrive in a dry condition it is essential that they should be soaked and allowed to stand for some time before attempting to remove them from the tins or pots.

HERBACEOUS PERENNIALS.

Plants of this type are mostly propagated in the open ground and are sent out without potting up. They should, therefore, be ordered for delivery at planting time. In the Western Province that would be from May to September. With you it may be otherwise, so please tell us when you would like them delivered. Some kinds will have to be transferred to tins for out-of-season delivery and will then have to be held back for several weeks to become established. For this service an extra charge of 1/- each or 9/- per dozen is necessarily made.

SHRUBS.

We are listing the smaller shrubs in the groups which follow here. Some of these are not strictly shrubs—the Ivy-leaved Geraniums, for instance, and some of the Mesembrianthemums—but we find the arrangement a convenient one and we hope no one will be misled by it. We have endeavoured to indicate the habit of the plant as near as we can in every instance. The General List of Ornamental and Flowering Shrubs will be found after these groups.

ORNAMENTAL AND FLOWERING SHRUBS.

The division between "Shrubs" and "Trees" is an arbitrary one. Many trees are listed here simply because they are suitable for growing as shrubs until too large for this purpose.

There are occasional items in this list which are neither Shrubs nor Trees but they will nevertheless be found useful in the Shrubbery and that is why they are listed here.

All shrubs priced at 2/- each in $\frac{1}{4}$ tins, will be supplied in assorted dozens at 21/- for a dozen.
